SERVICE RISERS

ANODELESS SERVICE RISERS

The positive transition joint between the polyethylene (PE) pipe and the gas carrying steel pipe is made above ground and does not require cathodic (anode) protection.

RIGID ANODELESS RISERS

Pre-bent anodeless meter risers have a wide range of different designs and dimensions. While the most common connection is male pipe threads at the meter set connection, other styles such as flanges, beveled end for welding and bypass nipples are also available. For protection, these riser casings are coated with an electrostatically applied thin film epoxy coating. Standard configurations include various vertical and horizontal dimensions.

FLEXIBLE ANODELESS RISERS

Flexible anodeless service risers offer many of the features of the pre-bent design with an added feature utilizing gas tubing armour flexible metal hose. The flexible tubing is attached to the steel portion of the riser with a transition that is stronger in tensile than the flex tubing itself. Flexible Risers are ideal for variable ground level depths and eliminates the need for purchasing risers with various vertical lengths.

FLEXIBLE SERVICE HEAD ADAPTER RISERS

Flexible service head adapter risers offer many of the features that the pre-bent service head adapter riser offer, with an added feature utilizing gas tubing armour flexible hose. The flexible hose is attached to the steel portion of the riser with a transition that is stronger in tensile than the flex hose itself. Using flexible hose provides the user with a design that permits variable ground level depths and eliminates the need for purchasing risers with various vertical lengths.

TRANSITION (ANODE) SERVICE RISERS

The positive transition joint between the polyethylene (PE) pipe and gas carrying steel casing is made below ground. Field installation of an anode is recommended.

TRANSITION (ANODE) RISERS

Lyall Transition Risers are manufactured using schedule 40 steel pipe with a transition fitting as an integral part of riser. Each riser has an external thin film epoxy coating to protect against corrosion.

COMPRESSION (ANODE) RISERS

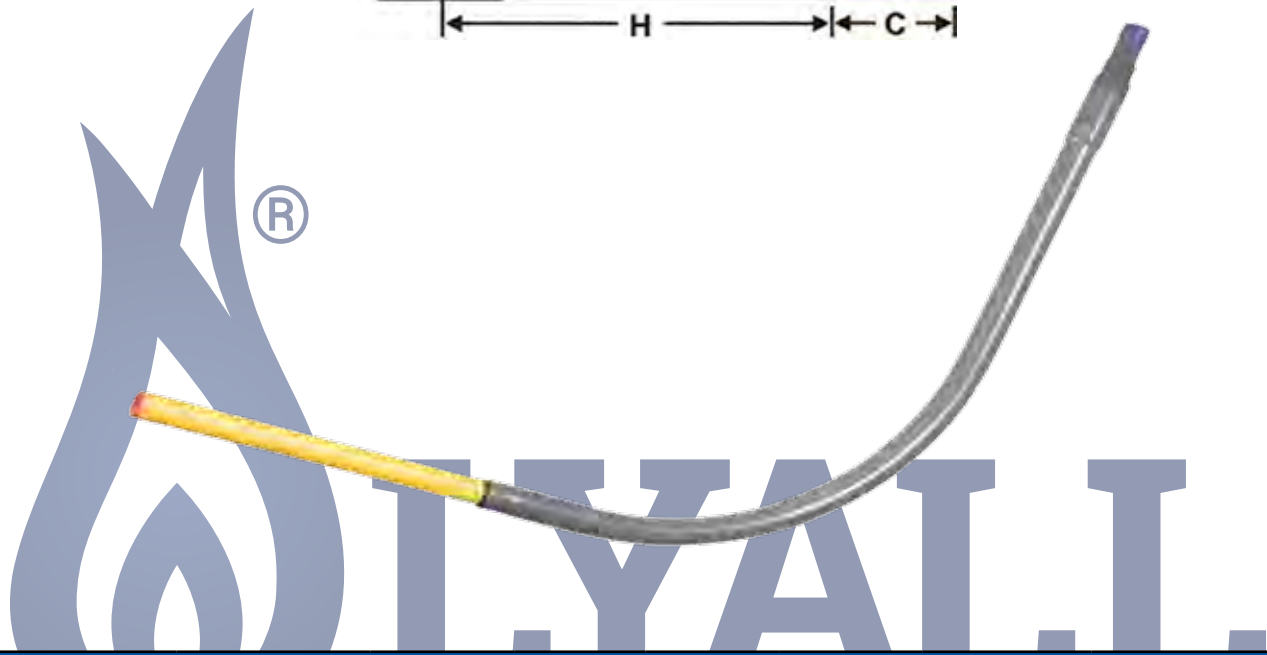

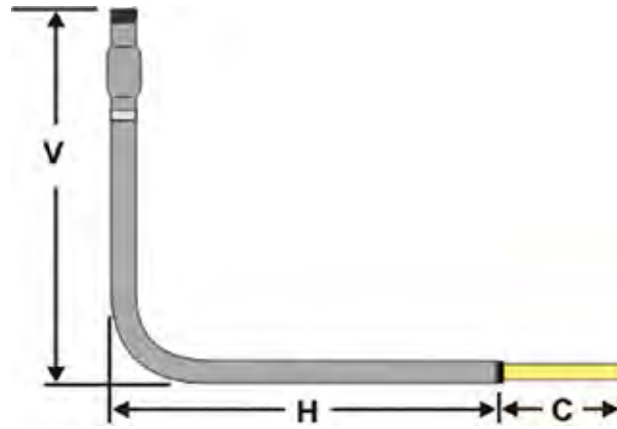

Lyall Compression Risers are manufactured using schedule 40 steel pipe welded to a compression fitting with a built in stiffener and gasket. Compression risers can be installed with conventional and tools eliminating the need for fusion equipment.
