

BASE CANS – FURNACE STANDS

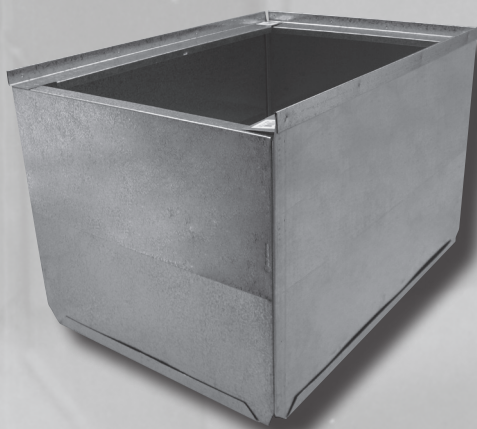

One Product, Dual Purpose

Known and used for typical downflow furnace installations in a crawl slab, Base Cans are a staple.

DID YOU KNOW ...

Base Cans can also be used as a Furnace Stand?

In today's custom built homes with higher basement ceilings, using a Base Can as a Furnace Stand raises the furnace up, allowing you to use stock plenums.

Available in insulated and non-insulated.

Since 1960, ECCO Manufacturing™ has established itself as one of the largest manufacturers and suppliers of sheet metal products in North America. Our products are distributed through factory authorized distributors in Canada, the USA, and Internationally. With approximately half a million square feet of manufacturing and distribution facilities located in Langley, British Columbia; Calgary, Alberta; and Kent, Washington; ECCO Manufacturing™ is fully committed to "The Pursuit of Excellence".

Our distribution network is built on long term commitments. Careful evaluation of each product line is carried out to ensure that the highest standards of design, function and lasting value are met. We confidently stand behind all products distributed by ECCO Manufacturing™.

We have the capability of working with ferrous and non-ferrous material from 30 gauge up to 10 gauge. We design and produce highly engineered products in rectangular, round and flat oval, and any other flat shape required. We are able to take you from estimate to completed job, assisting you in coordination, fabrication, and shipping. From mass produced to custom OEM products, we are here to help – contact us and see.

We are continuously researching and developing new products that will make a worthwhile contribution not only to ECCO's success, but also to the success of the HVAC industry. The innovations developed at our manufacturing plants help improve the quality, value, and diversity of our products in order to meet the needs of our valued customers. Your satisfaction is our number one priority.

At ECCO Manufacturing™, we continually strive to identify and satisfy our customers' growing needs. We invest in the most advanced resource technology, equipment, leadership and employees to guarantee customer satisfaction.
